THE TELANGANA MUTUALLY AIDED CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES ACT, 1995

[Act No. 30 of 1995]

An Act to provide for the voluntary formation of Co-operative Societies reliant business enterprises, based on thrift, self-help and mutual aid and owned, managed and controlled by members for their economic and social, betterment and for the matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

1. In early 1960s, co-operative legislation all over the country underwent major changes with a view to enabling State and Union Governments to play an active role in the promotion and development of co-operatives. Co-operatives were viewed as important tools to be used by the State to ensure that disadvantaged sections of people could have access to subsidised credit and other production inputs, especially in rural areas. In Andhra Pradesh too, at this time, the Andhra Pradesh Co-operative Societies Act, 1964 was enacted, and although it was introduced as a consolidation of the two earlier Acts then prevailing in Andhra and Telengana areas, respectively, it was guided by the findings of the All India Rural Credit Survey Committee (Gorwala Committee, 1954), which recommended an active role for the State in the spread of the co-operative movement.
2. Over the years, however, increased State participation in the financing and management of co-operatives has led to an unfortunate situation where co-operatives themselves, by and large, have started to perceive themselves not as member-controlled, member-sensitive business, guided by the universally accepted principles of co-operation, but as channels for Government subsidies and largesse. Sound and sustainable co-operative business, accountability, responsibility and self-reliance have taken a back seat.
3. At a time when deregulation and liberalisation are enabling other forms of business to break new ground, it appears necessary to enable businesses registered as co-operatives also to have at least the same degree of freedom to conduct - their affairs, if these businesses are to have a fair chance of being able to compete successfully with other business.
4. Co-operative financing organisations, such as the National Bank for Agriculture and Rural Development, the National Co-operative Development Corporation and the National Dairy Development Board have also been seeking vast by which they can where possible deal directly with Co-operative Societies without necessarily having to involve Government.

5. Given, however, the dependence on Government of several Co-operative Societies, either because of the very objects of these co-operatives or because of their weak nature, it would appear not very responsible on the part of the Government to withdraw its support and intervention altogether, or suddenly. In the case of such co-operative, the provisions of the A.P. Co-operative Societies Act, 1964 are considered necessary.
6. On the other hand, the Government recognises that there are some Co-operatives which may have some Government funds but are not dependent on such funds or on Government assistance in other forms for their survival. These co-operatives need to be given greater autonomy and encouraged to pursue to legitimate interests of their members in an effective, self-reliant, responsible, accountable and democratic manner. The Government also recognises that enabling legislation is required if ordinary people who expect to benefit from the co-operative form of business, without being dependent on Governmental resources, are to voluntarily promote and effectively develop services for themselves through their own Co-operative Societies.
7. In the backdrop of the above changed perception, the Government have decided to undertake Legislation in order to promote self-reliant and autonomous Co-operative Societies and make the co-operative movement more vibrant in the State. The salient features of the proposed legislation are,-
 - (1) to enunciate the co-operative principles which primarily place an accent on voluntary, self-financing, autonomous bodies for removal from State control ;
 - (2) to enable not less than ten individuals belonging to different families to form a Co-operative Society and confer on it the status a body corporate ;
 - (3) to enable the Co-operative Societies to regulate their functioning by framing bye-laws subject to the provisions of the Act in respect of the various matters specified in the legislation ;
 - (4) to enable the Co-operative Societies to change the form or the extent of their liability, to transfer their assets and liabilities, to divide or amalgamate in furtherance of their stated objectives ;
 - (5) to enable the societies registered under the Andhra Pradesh Co-operative Societies Act, 1964 to become Co-operative Societies registered under this Act by making a suitable provision therefore ;

- (6) to enable the Co-operative Societies to mobilise their own funds;
- (7) to empower the Co-operative Societies to provide for the qualifications and disqualifications for membership ;
- (8) to provide for the constitution, powers and functions of the Board of Directors and for matters incidental thereto ;
- (9) to define the powers and functions of the General Body etc.;
- (10) to make the Co-operative Societies responsible to hold the elections and to regulate the process thereof ;
- (11) to provide for proper accountability and for that purpose to conduct audit, special audit, inquiry and for the recovery of loss caused to the society by misconduct or otherwise ;
- (12) to provide for the settlement of disputes by constituting a Co-operative Tribunal ; and
- (13) for other incidental and consequential matters.
